WHAT THEY ARE AND WHAT THEY DO

INFORMATION COMPILED AND WRITTEN BY SOMEONE TRULY ANONYMOUS

Disclaimer: This document is a work of art.

PREFACE

Beware those who would give you false knowledge, bad advice, and those who would choose to manipulate you by controlling your perception of reality. This will happen in all media (TV, movie, news, magazine, books, etc.) and online communication (including boards like 4chan). Their main goal is to present you with carefully constructed ideas and media (images, videos, sounds) aimed at changing your outlook and thus your actions in the world. The media they make portrays a false reality but may be constructed of small truths organized in an artificial fashion to lead the victim to a false conclusion. Sometimes they may choose to manipulate you by withholding information, such as the censorship of crime statistics and selective attention in reporting. Another avenue of attack is through education, wherein they put their ideas into the classroom and teach it to children while they are in the stage where they will believe anything.

White Man cannot be competed with directly, and thus he must be tied down with metaphysical ropes that are implanted in his mind through manipulation. What you believe, you can achieve. What you believe not, you will not. And thus if White Man cannot be perturbed from external forces the enemy must, and does, attempt to subvert him from the inside via sabotaging his worldview. The enemy wishes for you to be weak, demoralized and confused.

"Racism" and "racists" are new concepts, "racism" being introduced in 1902 and not becoming popular until 1930s, designed to weaken the Whites and empower blacks. It's as if someone wanted you to stop breathing so they called you a "breathist" and tried to make you feel guilty about breathing. Same thing with "racist." They don't want you to use your natural ability of discrimination because blacks cannot compete, and this allows them to victimize you without fear of retaliation.

All groups do and are expected to take care of their own, except for Whites. Whites are told that they must not be "racist" and that they must give their resources to people that are outside their group and who would do harm to the White Man if given the chance.

Using the information provided herein you should be able to have a more realistic view of the current world situation and can adjust your behavior and beliefs accordingly.

Personal comment: One must be careful when interpreting such information due to muddying variables which may affect IQ such as nutrition, environment, culture or poverty. However, on the chance DNA does play a part (and let's face it, that's not outside the realm of possibility), then we're basically reducing the intelligence of the world by inviting migrants into Europe, Australia, Canada, and the US from foreign countries. Should we really be playing dice with the future of humanity like this?

Canadian Court Declares Math Test For New Teachers 'Unconstitutional' Because Of Racial Disparities In Passage Rates

Race and Intelligence: the Facts

HOW MUCH DO YOU REALLY KNOW?

Race differences in intelligence have been the subject of decades of research by experts like Arthur Jensen, Richard Lynn, and J.P. Rushton. This flyer is a very brief introduction to their work. You may not like their findings, but that doesn't make them any less true.

INTELLIGENCE

From Mainstream Science on Intelligence (1994), endorsed by 52 experts: "Intelligence is a VERY GENERAL MENTAL CAPABILITY that, among other things, involves the ability to reason, plan, solve problems, think abstractly, comprehend complex ideas, learn quickly and learn from experience."

Furthermore, intelligence tests "are among the MOST ACCURATE (in technical terms, RELIABLE and VALID) of all psychological tests and assessments." For one thing, intelligence tests "are NOT CULTURALLY BIASED against American blacks."

THE 'G' FACTOR

Psychologists have detected a GENERAL MENTAL ABILITY factor, called g, which underlies all forms of thinking: verbal, spatial, mathematical, and so on. g is raw brainpower: both HIGHLY GENERAL and HIGHLY PRACTICAL. It even helps you read a bus schedule. It is not a "statistical artifact" or just "book smarts."

From teachers to welders, from lawyers to soldiers, g predicts job performance better than any other factor — even job experience (Schmidt & Hunter, 2004).

IQ

IQ tests, like the WAIS, Stanford-Binet, and Raven's Matrices, are a very good way to measure g. From Mainstream Science on Intelligence again: "IQ is STRONGLY RELATED, probably more so than any other single measurable human trait, to many important educational, occupational, economic, and social outcomes." In other words, your childhood IQ score is a VERY GOOD PREDICTOR of future success.

MIND THE GAP

In the US, the average white IQ is about 100, the average black IQ is about 85, and the average East Asian IQ is about 105. The 15- to 18-point black-white difference is known as the IQ GAP, and it is an ESTABLISHED SCIENTIFIC FACT. You can skip The Bell Curve (not that there was anything wrong with it), and look it up in basic college textbooks like Human Biological Variation (2006): "There is LITTLE DEBATE over the average 15-point difference [in IQ] between American blacks and whites."

"BUT I KNOW LOTS OF SMART BLACK PEOPLE"

Congratulations. Have them explain AVERAGES to you.

STANDARDIZED TESTING

The standard deviation, σ ("sigma"), of a set of test scores measures how much the scores "spread out," σ changes from test to test, but it always represents the same thing, so σ provides a STANDARDIZED UNIT for measuring test score gaps. For IQ tests, σ is 15 points, so the black/white gap there is about 1.1 σ 's.

A 2001 meta-analysis (Roth et al.) looked at 105 studies of cognitive ability, with a total of over 6 MILLION test subjects. It found that the average black g is 1.1 σ 's lower than the average white g. So whether it's the SAT or the Stanford-Binet, tests of brainpower always find VERY SIMILAR RACIAL DIFFERENCES.

A CASE OF POVERTY AND "PRIVILEGE"?

Researchers have already tested that theory and proved it WRONG. Let's consider the SAT, which mostly measures g. Colleges use it because it predicts academic success well. SAT scores tend to rise with family income. BUT AT EVERY INCOME LEVEL, whites score MUCH HIGHER than blacks on both the math and verbal sections (by 100 to 110 points). For example, in 2009, white children from the POOREST families, earning under $20K a year, outscored (by 12 points) black children from the RICHEST families, earning up to $200K a year.

STRONG EVIDENCE FOR A GENETIC GAP

Busing, affirmative action, special scholarships, No Child Left Behind, "stereotype threat" experiments, even the Flynn effect... NONE OF THEM closed the IQ gap, because it's probably 50 to 80% genetic (Rushton & Jensen, 2005). That is what SCIENCE tells us.

Three quick points to make: (1) g is 80% heritable in adulthood: an 89% correlation between genes and g. (2) Race is genetic: with 326 genetic markers, you can predict self-identified race with 100% accuracy (Tang et al., 2004). (3) Any study that claims the gap is "environmental," but DOESN'T CONTROL FOR GENES (like twin studies do), is worthless.

Strong evidence for a genetic gap comes from IQ-testing the kids of smart parents. Biology predicts they will regress (go back) to the mean (average) for their population (race). In fact, white kids regress toward a mean IQ about 15 points higher than black kids. Environmental theories can't explain that.

The 1976 Minnesota Transracial Adoption Study tested the IQs of white, black, and mixed-race kids, all adopted by advantaged white families. As always, whites scored 15 points above blacks. Mixed-race kids placed according to their GENES: between black and white. 12 families mistakenly believed their mixed-race child was black, and raised them that way; these kids scored like the other MIXED-RACE kids (similar genes), not like actual black kids (similar environment).

MAJOR SOCIAL IMPLICATIONS

The g gap explains racial disparities in social outcomes, which are usually blamed on "systemic racism." Since 88% of blacks are born BELOW THE WHITE AVERAGE in intelligence (Levin, 1997), does it make sense to "correct" black under-representation with affirmative action, or are we just DISCRIMINATING against whites in order to advance some blacks beyond their abilities?

Thank you for reading. This flyer was brought to you by the staff of UnamusementPark.com.

Myth #5: "Racial differences in intelligence are explained by socio-economic factors"

Fact: Multiple studies across several decades show that even when you account for income, parenting and other factors, the gap between blacks and whites persists at all levels.

At All Family Income Levels, There is a Persisting Racial Gap in SAT Scores

Kansas City Experiment.

"In 1985 a federal district judge took partial control over the troubled Kansas City, Missouri, School District (KCMSD) on the grounds that it was an unconstitutionally segregated district with dilapidated facilities and students who performed poorly. In an effort to bring the district into compliance with his liberal interpretation of federal law, the judge ordered the state and district to spend nearly $2 billion over the next 12 years to build new schools, integrate classrooms, and bring student test scores up to national norms."

The judicial branch ordered the legislative branch to spend money, and told it exactly how to do it.

"Kansas City spent as much as $11,700 per pupil - more money per pupil, on a cost of living adjusted basis, than any other of the 280 largest districts in the country. The money bought higher teachers' salaries, 15 new schools, and such amenities as an Olympic-sized swimming pool with an underwater viewing room, television and animation studios, a robotics lab, a 25-acre wildlife sanctuary, a zoo, a model United Nations with simultaneous translation capability, and field trips to Mexico and Senegal. The student-teacher ratio was 12 or 13 to 1, the lowest of any major school district in the country."

How did that turn out?

"The results were dismal. Test scores did not rise, the black-white gap did not diminish; and there was less, not greater, integration."

Pre-med student tried to give baby daughter bleach to relieve congestion, police say

A Florida man who says he is a first year pre-med student was charged with child abuse after he confessed to pouring bleach into his 2-month-old baby's bottle on Sunday to help relieve her congestion, MyFoxOrlando.com reported.

"This is probably the dumbest decision I have ever made," Carron Washington, 25, told the station from the Marion County Jail.

Washington says the girl, Caylin, was born with her esophagus not completely attached to her stomach and has since had complications. He learned about clearing up the airways with bleach solution through a friend at school, the report said.

This man would have been your doctor thanks to minority advocacy, "social justice," and policies aimed at increasing "diversity."

Highlights

- This study examines parental influences on the development of verbal intelligence.
- An adoption-based research design is used to control for genetic confounding.
- Parenting has a marginal and inconsistent influence on offspring IQ.

Abstract

The association between family/parenting and offspring IQ remains the matter of debate because of threats related to genetic confounding. The current study is designed to shed some light on this association by examining the influence of parenting influences on adolescent and young adult IQ scores. To do so, a nationally representative sample of youth is analyzed along with a sample of adoptees. The sample of adoptees is able to more fully control for genetic confounding. The results of the study revealed that there is only a marginal and inconsistent influence of parenting on offspring IQ in adolescence and young adulthood. These weak associations were detected in both the nationally representative sample and the adoptive subsample. Sensitivity analyses that focused only on monozygotic twins also revealed no consistent associations between parenting/family measures and verbal intelligence. Taken together, the results of these statistical models indicate that family and parenting characteristics are not significant contributors to variation in IQ scores. The implications of this study are discussed in relation to research examining the effects of family/parenting on offspring IQ scores.

A New Radical Centrist
@a_centrist

Black people are about 40 times more likely to commit a violent crime against white people than white people are against black people, once data are adjusted for population share.

And yet the vast majority of black people are afraid of being attacked by whites.

- Although most violence is "intra-racial" (committed by similar race/ethnicity):
- Blacks committed 547,948 violent attacks on Whites
- Whites committed 59,777 violent attacks on Blacks
- Blacks committed 122,364 violent attacks on Hispanics
- Hispanics committed 44,551 violent attacks on Blacks

BLACK LIVES MATTER DEBUNKED BY SCIENCE

CLAIM #1

"POLICE ARE TARGETING AND KILLING BLACKS AT HIGHER RATES"

When you control for crime and police encounters, no racial bias in police shootings is found. Police are also quicker to pull trigger against white criminals than black ones.

Scientific Study #2: <https://onlinelibrary.wiley.com/doi/abs/10.1111/1745-9133.12187>

CLAIM #2

"BLACKS DONT COMMIT MORE CRIME. POLICE ARE IN BLACK AREAS MORE"

Black Americans commit homicide at a 10 times higher rate than whites, and commit violent crime at a rate that is 5 times higher than whites per 100,000. Black males make up only 6% of the population, yet account for over 50% of all homicides and violent crime.

CLAIM #3

"POLICE ARE THE PROBLEM, DEFUNDING WILL MAKE OUR AREAS SAFER"

In 2019, police killed 14 unarmed blacks and 25 unarmed whites. In that same year, around 8,000 blacks killed other blacks, most went unsolved. In 2019 over 100 blacks died from falling down the stairs, and thousands died from car accidents.

CLAIM #4

"BLACK CRIME IS SOLELY DUE TO POVERTY, EDUCATION, UNJUST SYSTEM"

Black cities in America have higher homicide rates than many third world South & Central American cities. Even the poorest white areas do not experience the levels of violent crime that low, middle, and even high income black areas do. The black crime and incarceration rate is also FAR higher than it was in the 40's, 50's, 60's, and 70's.

America doesn't have a gun problem. It has a black problem.

After six burglaries, three car thefts, multiple illegal trespasses, an ongoing cocaine and alcohol addiction, committing two violent home invasions, three armed robberies, drug dealing with fentanyl and meth, passing counterfeit money, beating four victims senseless and being arrested 19 times since 1998, George Floyd has not committed a crime in almost a year.

BLACK CRIME IN CANADA

In 1989, Julian Fantino, then police head of the division, told the Committee on Community, Race, and Ethnic Relations of the former city of North York (which was amalgamated with five other municipalities and Toronto in 1998) that black people were largely overrepresented in the commission of crime. While composing only 6% of the population of the area at the time, black people accounted for 82% of robberies and muggings, 55% of purse-snatchings, and 51% of drug offenses in the previous year, according to Fantino's statistics. After black activist groups and social agencies condemned Fantino for exacerbating what they viewed as existing prejudices against black people, the municipality banned the compilation of racial crime statistics. Fantino stood by his decision to release the racial data, regretting only that he was unaware of a Toronto Star reporter's attendance at the committee.

Yes, that is how the law works. Everyone gets their due process and you don't kill someone unless they're DIRECTLY threatening your life.

Abstract

One of the most consistent findings in the criminological literature is that African American males are arrested, convicted, and incarcerated at rates that far exceed those of any other racial or ethnic group. This racial disparity is frequently interpreted as evidence that the criminal justice system is racist and biased against African American males. Much of the existing literature purportedly supporting this interpretation, however, fails to estimate properly specified statistical models that control for a range of individual-level factors. The current study was designed to address this shortcoming by analyzing a sample of African American and White males drawn from the National Longitudinal Study of Adolescent Health (Add Health). Analysis of these data revealed that African American males are significantly more likely to be arrested and incarcerated when compared to White males. This racial disparity, however, was completely accounted for after including covariates for self-reported lifetime violence and IQ. Implications of this study are discussed and avenues for future research are offered.

Highlights

- Much research has examined the link between race and criminal justice processing.
- Disparity in CJ processing has generally been explained in terms of discrimination. ► Results suggest that IQ and lifetime violence account for racial gaps in CJ processing.

"I have given my life to try to alleviate the sufferings of Africa. There is something that all white men who have lived here like I must learn and know:

"That these individuals are a sub-race. They have neither the intellectual, mental, or emotional abilities to equate or to share equally with white men in any function of our civilization. I have given my life to try to bring them the advantages which our civilization must offer, but I have become well aware that we must retain this status: the superior and they the inferior. For whenever a white man seeks to live among them as their equals they will either destroy him or devour him. And they will destroy all of his work. Let white men from anywhere in the world, who would come to Africa, remember that you must continually retain this status: you the master and they the inferior like children that you would help or teach. Never fraternize with them as equals. Never accept them as your social equals or they will devour you. They will destroy you."

- Dr Albert Schweitzer, Nobel Peace Prize Winner 1951 ("African Notebook" 1939)

"The fact that human races aren't categorized as separate subspecies is an insult to me and the objective work of evolutionary biologists. There is more than enough evidence out there to conclude that we're separate subspecies with different ways of functioning neurologically."

This new age of modern progressives refusing evidence that contradicts their worldview is alarming. We as a society need to rethink our ways of biased thinking"

-Richard Dawkins, "The Extended Phenotype" (1982)

"Western man towers over the rest of the world in ways so large as to be almost inexpressible. It's Western exploration, science, and conquest that have revealed the world to itself. Other races feel like subjects of Western power long after colonialism, imperialism, and slavery have disappeared. The charge of racism puzzles whites who feel not hostility, but only baffled good will, because they don't grasp what it really means: humiliation. The white man presents an image of superiority even when he isn't conscious of it. And, superiority excites envy. Destroying white civilization is the inmost desire of the league of designated victims we call minorities."

1 Who pays for the taxes and where does it go?

The most recent year with good data on everything is 2014. So that is the year all of these numbers are from. <http://archive.is/sBR50>

Before getting into the methods, I'll first show the final impact of this so you can see what a big deal this is:

Budgetary Impact of Whites, Blacks and Hispanics in 2014

Category	Equal Military	Static Military
Whites	$653.52 billion	$249.52 billion
White Per Capita	$2,795	$1,260
Blacks	-$389.71 billion	-$306.53 billion
Black Per Capita	-$10,016	-$7,700
Hispanics	-$411.95 billion	-$291.3 billion
Hispanic Per Capita	-$7,298	-$5,160

This takes into account taxes paid and government services consumed at both the State and Federal level. The "Equal Military" column treats military spending as a service consumed equally on a per-capita basis between blacks, whites and hispanics. The "Static military" assigns all military spending to whites.

On net, whites generate a $249.52 billion surplus, or $1,260 per person if you assign 100% of military spending to whites. If you just give whites a proportional share of military spending, their surplus goes up to $553.52 billion total and $2,795 per capita.

Blacks, by contrast, run a budget deficit of $389.71 billion, or $10,016 per capita. If 100% of military spending is assigned to whites, blacks STILL run a $306.53 billion deficit, or $7,700 per capita.

Hispanics run a budget deficit of $411.95 billion of $7,298 per capita if military spending is proportional. If 100% of military spending is assigned to whites hispanics run a deficit of $291.3 billion, or $5,160 per capita.

Race and Tax Revenue

So regarding the methodology, I first looked in several places to figure out how much each race paid in taxes, as the government doesn't keep such statistics. However, there are statistics collected by the tax foundation showing how much each income bracket pays in taxes.

And the census has data on income for each race and the proportion of brackets they are. And so using this, we can deduce how much each racial group pays in taxes.

Race and Tax Payment in 2014

Bracket	% of taxes bracket pays	% of bracket is white	% of bracket is hispanic	% of bracket is black	% of taxes paid by whites-in-bracket	% of taxes paid by blacks-in-bracket	% of taxes paid by hispanics-in-bracket
Top 5%	38.9	80.87	6.17	5.00	31.46	1.945	2.4001
6-20%	25.4	77.72	7.80	7.48	19.74	1.8999	1.9812
21-40%	18.3	73.65	10.70	8.91	13.48	1.6305	1.9581
41-60%	9.9	68.3	12.68	13.76	6.76	1.3622	1.2553
61-80%	5.1	63.01	17.89	16.67	3.21	0.8502	0.9124
81-100%	2.1	57.41	16.23	21.25	1.21	0.4463	0.3408
Total					75.86	8.134	8.8479

This comes out to $4529.52 billion paid by whites, $528.30 billion paid by hispanics, and $485.67 billion paid by blacks.

Wage Impact of Racial Diversity

One thing people will say in response is that white wages are jacked up by having non-whites around. This doesn't appear to be true when you look at regions in the US.

Median Income and Proportion of Population of Whites by Region

Region	% White	Median Income of White Males	Median Income of White Females
Northeast	67.6	$40,435	$25,090
Midwest	77.2	$36,892	$22,803
South	59.0	$37,666	$22,199
West	50.9	$41,366	$23,140

So a big impact doesn't just pay out at you. And if there is a correlation between median white income in a state, or county, and the proportion of blacks and/or hispanics in that state or county, well then the next step would be to show causality.

Another interesting thing to point out is that a Dutch meta-analysis of 384 studies on the impact of immigration on native wages in the United States and EU countries found that a 1% increase in immigrants as part of the labor force was associated with a 0.119% reduction in native wages.

But one thing to consider is correlation and causation. Just because a 1% increase in immigration is only associated with a 0.119% decrease in native wages doesn't mean that the actual impact is that small.

So we're looking at a small negative impact on wages, not the big positive impacts you would need for the libertarian story to hold water. I mean it's not stupid to believe in the absence of data, lower-skilled people come in, earn wages, white people are freed for higher-earning labor. But it doesn't appear to be actually happening.

If you want to argue that the presence of blacks and hispanics around white people drives up white wages, that's not something that is immediately obvious from the data. It's only intuitive if you to hold very pro-market priors. You need more than just "ideas that make sense" and connect-the-dots / painting-by-numbers economic narratives that libertarians like to spin, and then act as if they've actually discovered something.

Conclusion

The negative fiscal impact of blacks and hispanics is significant. All of this discussion of a "national debt" and "deficit" is primarily of function of blacks and hispanics. Without them, we would be running budget surpluses today, even when keeping the military the same size.

Race and Government Use

So how does that compare with services consumed? Well for Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid and Welfare I was able to find racial breakdowns. But what about state spending? Roads, schools, trash pick-up, police? For all of that I lumped into "equal government" and assigned the cost of it on a population basis.

Race and Government Use 2014

Service	Budget	White Use %	White Use $	Black Use %	Black Use $	Hisp. Use %	Hisp. Use $
"Equal Gov"	3,482	62.1	2162.32	12.2	424.8	17.7	616.3
Social Security	1,262	64.07	1000.96	9.31	117.5	6.23	78.6
Medicare	505	76	383.90	10	50.5	9	45.45
Medicaid	476	39.06	185.93	19.9	94.72	26.43	125.8
Welfare	472	38.8	183.14	39.8	187.86	15.7	74.1
Total	6,197	64.16	3976	14.1	875.38	15.2	940.25
(Static Mil)	6,197	69.07	4280	12.78	792.2	13.2	819.6

So as it happened, and this is something I thought going in, the race differences in government consumption are not a very big deal, and the real cause of the budgetary impacts of races is the difference in tax payment. I also found some data showing that whites made up 75% of millionaires, and I thought "ya know, based on this, whites overall probably pay around 75% of the taxes" - and I was correct.

A FEW FACTS ABOUT SLAVERY

1. All races kept slaves all throughout history.
2. Most of the American slaveships and American slave-markets were run by Jews. But no one blames modern Jews. Because if anyone today says anything was "run by Jews", they're immediately dismissed as a crazy anti-Semite, regardless of whether or not it's true.
3. When the Trans-Atlantic slaveships docked at African slave-markets to buy slaves, they bought slaves who were already slaves. It was Arab Muslims and Black Africans themselves who captured members of rival tribes and took them to the coastal slave-markets to sell to the Whites and Jews. White people didn't go into Africa and kidnap free black people. They barely needed to get off their ships to buy slaves, it was like buying McDonalds at a drive-through. The slaves were already at the slave-market in chains, ready to go.
4. In the 16th – 18th century, Africans enslaved 1.5 million White Europeans in the Barbary Slave Trade. African Muslims raided up the coastlines of Europe, particularly the British Isles but even as far as Iceland, kidnapping and enslaving White European Christians. The men were galley slaves, and the women were sex slaves. This was more brutal than working on a plantation or as a domestic servant.
5. Native Americans and Jews owned Black slaves too, but no one seems to assign a collective guilt to modern Native Americans and Jews for their slavery. In fact, Jews were the biggest slave-owners in America per capita.
6. Whites were the first people to stop slavery in modern times, whereas slavery still continues in Africa to this day. In Mauritania slavery was only made a punishable offense in 2007!
7. Less than 2% of Whites in America ever owned slaves
8. Only 5% of the black slaves transported across the Atlantic actually went to the modern U.S. Most in fact went to Latin America to serve Hispanic slave-owners. But we don't look at modern Hispanics as evil slave-owners.

Zimbabwe pleads for $1.5bn in food aid to prevent mass starvation

By Vasudevan Sridharan

February 10, 2016 05:30 GMT

Zimbabwe is seeking $1.5bn (£1bn) in food aid to avoid mass starvation in the country. As the drought worsens, nearly a quarter of the population in the landlocked southern African nation face the risk of starving to death.

Government officials are appealing to local businesses and charities to help Harare combat brutal hunger across the nation. Zimbabwean authorities estimate the recent drought, the most severe in 20 years, has left three million people without food.

The downside of diversity

By MICHAEL JONAS AUG. 5, 2007

IT HAS BECOME increasingly popular to speak of racial and ethnic diversity as a civic strength. From multicultural festivals to pronouncements from political leaders, the message is the same: our differences make us stronger.

But a massive new study, based on detailed interviews of nearly 30,000 people across America, has concluded just the opposite. Harvard political scientist Robert Putnam -- famous for "Bowling Alone," his 2000 book on declining civic engagement -- has found that the greater the diversity in a community, the fewer people vote and the less they volunteer, the less they give to charity and work on community projects. In the most diverse communities, neighbors trust one another about half as much as they do in the most homogeneous settings. The study, the largest ever on civic engagement in America, found that virtually all measures of civic health are lower in more diverse settings.

"The extent of the effect is shocking," says Scott Page, a University of Michigan political scientist.

WHY IS AFRICA POOR? Let's see what liberal academics say:

Nicholas Kristof, The New York Times

a homogeneity of ethnic groups within borders drawn arbitrarily by colonial rulers are still struggling to adjust to modern nationhood. Such instability has always been fatal to economic development

Johnson Olatsehkan Aremu, University of Ado-Ekiti

Conflicts in Africa may be said to have been caused by a multiplicity of factors such as arbitrary borders created by the colonial powers, heterogeneous ethnic composition of African states.

Refugee problem: One of the attendant effects of wars and conflicts in Africa is the emergence of numerous number of displaced persons who have become refugees in different nations across the continent the borders of ex colonial countries are arbitrary, cutting across tribal or ethnic or religious borders, leaving a legacy of unresolved and probably irreconcilable disputes.

Dainius Magdala, in Language and Literature

Europe's arbitrary post-colonial borders left Africans beheaded incentives that don't represent their beliefs a contradiction that will trouble them today.

Max Fisher, The Atlantic Monthly

Europe's arbitrary post-colonial borders left Africans beheaded incentives that don't represent their beliefs a contradiction that will trouble them today.

David Bigman, in Poverty, Hunger and Democracy in Africa

the problems created by the arbitrarily drawn national borders now came into the open often resulting in border disputes between tribes that escalated into disputes between countries, violent conflicts, and wars

James Fenske, Yale University

Many of Africa's borders were set arbitrarily during the Berlin Conference of 1884-85. Alesina et al. (2006) demonstrate that "artificial" states -- those with straight-line borders and particularly those for which major ethnic groups are split along multiple countries -- have lower GDP per capita today. Englebert et al. (2002) find that borders that divide African ethnic groups, regardless of their pre-colonial state centralization, are more likely to lead to international disputes. The same is true of straight-line borders, though inclusion

Adenola Adeyemi, University of San Francisco

Cultural and ethnic diversity is undeniably one of the reasons why many African nations are still poor today. Most if not all African nations have experienced some form of cultural clash that has led to ongoing conflicts and tensions, which in return has stunted economic and political changes

Alberto Alesina, William Easterly, and Janina Matuszewska, Harvard University

Artificial states are those in which political borders do not coincide with a division of nationalities desired by the people on the ground. Former colonizers or post war agreement amongst winners regarding borders have often created nation-states in which ethnic or religious or linguistic groups were thrown together or separated without any respect for peoples' aspirations. Eighty per cent of African borders follow latitudinal and longitudinal lines and many scholars believe that such artificial (unnatural) borders which create ethnically fragmented countries or, conversely, separate into bordering countries the same people, are at the roots of Africa's economic tragedy.

Saadia Touval in International Organization

the main incorporation of the diverse cultures under a "United States of Africa" will provide one of the most genuine ethnic/cultural peace the world would have ever witnessed

According to them, the problem is TOO MUCH DIVERSITY
poverty and conflict are the result when people of different cultures, races, and languages are forced to live together

Fact: Firstly, the figure is incorrect, recent studies already show a 99.5% match [1]. Secondly, 99.5% similarity (0.5% difference) does not refer to genes, but to base pairs. Each gene is formed by a large number of base pairs. A single change in a base pair can fundamentally change the function of a gene, and this, in turn, can affect the function of other genes. Thus, a change in even a single base pair can have a huge effect. A 0.5% difference in base pairs is substantial enough to measurably impact our genes. It is also worth considering that 98.5% of our DNA is non-coding. Thirdly, human DNA is 98.8% identical to chimpanzee DNA [2], i.e. the difference is only 0.7% more than between people of different races. If we argue that race doesn't exist due to a 0.5% difference in DNA, we may as well argue that chimps don't exist either.

Fixation Index

The fixation index (FST) is a measure of population differentiation due to genetic structure. It is one of the most commonly used statistics in population genetics.

The values range from 0 to 1. FST = 0 means the two populations are identical. FST = 1 means the two populations have nothing in common.

According to a newly released BJS report, there were 593,598 interracial violent victimizations between blacks and whites last year. Blacks committed 537,204 of those interracial felonies, or 90 percent, and whites committed less than 10 percent.

Lower attractiveness and higher weight in white women is associated with greater interest in black males. Higher attractiveness and healthy weight is associated with almost exclusive interest in white males. White women who describe themselves as slim, slender, athletic, fit or average are nearly seven times as likely to exclude black men as dates as women who describe themselves as thick, voluptuous, a few extra pounds, or large.

>/pol/ what happened to Detroit?
We fixed it. Here's a picture of Detroit, back when it was a hideously white cesspool that lacked diversity.
Just look at this picture from 1916. Don't you feel disgusted? You can't see a single African-American face. The women are demurely dressed because the patriarchy won't let them wear what they want. They are no gay porn shops - hell, there are no gays! Nowhere in that picture can you see a copulating interracial gay couple! You can't even see an interracial cis-heterosexual couple, for goodness sake.
And don't get me started on all the disgusting cis-normative capitalist signs everywhere. Even the streets are revoltingly clean because the white patriarchy oppressed all the African-American people who would otherwise have explored their cultural impetus to scatter garbage everywhere.
It saddens me to look at that picture, but then I look at modern Detroit, an interracial paradise of tolerance and diversity, and I breathe a sigh of relief. We liberals are going to fix the rest of America, just like we fixed Detroit.

Truth is the Black experiment has failed. Not because of white culture, or white privilege, or white racism. The fundamental problem is that American black culture has evolved into an un-fixable and crime ridden mess. They do not want to change their culture or society, and expect others to tolerate their violence and amoral behavior. They have become socially incompatible with other races by their own design, not because of the racism of others - but by their own hatred of non-blacks. They don't understand that white people aren't out to get black people; they are just exhausted with them. They are exhausted by the social pathologies, the violence, the endless complaints, and the blind racial solidarity, the bottomless pit of grievances, the excuses, and the reflexive animosity.

"MUH DICK"

This expression indicates a nigger's confusion and lack of understanding. When confronted with something he can not understand or respond to, niggers mumble, "Muh dick" or "Muh dick, muthafucka." This is usually followed by crotch grabbing and foot shuffling.

We sacrificed the stars for this.

Black people had Africa. They never built one boat that was seaworthy. NOT ONE! There's not one monument in Africa, all of Africa - I know you'll talk about Egypt. Egypt is not Africa. There's no great cities that were built there. Even before the fresh colonization of White people coming to the shores of Africa or the slaveships, BLACK MEN BUILD NOTHING. No sewer system. No houses above one level, and none of them made out of stone! All of them made outta grass and mud and wood.

Black men, before White men ever got to Africa... When the White men went to Africa, they didn't go there looking for no slaves. They didn't even want slaves, not at first. There was letters, people. There was tons of letters, still preserved today. And in those letters, the Portuguese sailors wrote back complaining. They was complaining that they build trade posts all over Africa, all over the African western coast, but they couldn't trade anything! They couldn't trade anything, because the Africans didn't produce anything! They, the Portuguese, they couldn't trade for food. Black folk didn't have no food surplus. Black folk didn't have no agriculture! Black folk didn't have no irrigation! They didn't have metal! They didn't know what iron was! Their tools were all made of stone and bone and sharpened sticks. They didn't even have leather. They didn't know how to treat leather, they only used hides! So the White man went looking to trade, and black folks couldn't give them nothing. They had some ropes of braided grass that rot away after a month or two then some leopard hide. That's all they had to trade. That and slaves. 'Cause even back then black folks was killing each other like we do now. So they took the slaves, the slaves other black folk enslaved. They took the slaves, because the Africans didn't have anything else to offer!

ARABS AND PERSIANS ON THE CHARACTERISTICS OF BLACKS, LONG BEFORE ANY EUROPEAN COLONIALISM IN AFRICA TOOK PLACE:

Ibn Khaldun

The only people who accept slavery are the Negroes, owing to their low degree of humanity and proximity to the animal stage. Other persons who accept the status of slave do so as a means of attaining high rank, or power, or wealth, as is the case with the Mameluke Turks in the East and with those Franks and Galleians who enter the service of the state [in Spain].

[Beyond [known peoples of black West Africa] to the south there is no civilization in the proper sense. There are only humans who are closer to dumb animals than to rational beings. They live in thickets and caves, and eat herbs and unprepared grain. They frequently eat each other. They cannot be considered human beings.]

Therefore, the Negro nation are, as a rule, submissive to slavery, because [Negroes] have little [that is essentially] human and have attributes that are quite similar to those of dumb animals, as we have stated.

Nasir al-Din al-Tusi

If [all types of men] are taken, from the first, and one placed after another, like the Negro from Zanzibar, in the Southern-most countries, the Negro does not differ from an animal in anything except the fact that his hands have been lifted from the earth - in no other peculiarity or property - except for what God wished. Many have seen that the ape is more capable of being trained than the Negro, and more intelligent.

Al-Muqaddasi

Of the neighbors of the Buja, Magdhal had heard that 'there is no marriage among them; the child does not know his father, and they eat people - but God knows best. As for the Zanji, they are people of black color, flat noses, kinky hair, and little understanding or intelligence.'

Al-Masudi

'Galen says that merment dominates the black man because of his defective brain, whence also the weakness of his intelligence.'

Ibn al-Faith

A man of discernment said: The people of Iraq ... do not come out with something between blonde, buff and blanché coloring, such as the infants dropped from the wombs of the women of the Slavs and others of similar light complexion; nor are they overdone in the womb until they are burned, so that the child comes out something between black, murky, malodorous, stinking, and crinkly-haired, with uneven limbs, deficient minds, and depraved passions, such as the Zanji, the Somali, and other blacks who resemble them. The traits are neither half-baked dough nor burned crust but between the two.'

Abu Rayhan al-Biruni

The Zanji are so uncivilized that they have no notion of a natural death. If a man dies a natural death, they think he was poisoned. Every death is suspicious with them, if a man has not been killed by a weapon.

Hudud al-'Alam

Their [Zanji] nature is that of wild animals. They are extremely black. 'Among themselves [the Sudan] there are people who steal each other's children and sell them to the merchants when the latter arrive.'

[Inhabitants of sub-Saharan African countries] are people distant from the standards of humanity 'Their nature is that of wild animals...'

As regards southern countries, all their inhabitants are black on account of the heat of their climate... Most of them go naked... In all their lands and provinces, gold is found... They are people distant from the standards of humanity.'

Al Jahiz

'Like the crow among mankind are the Zanji [African Blacks] for they are the worst of men and the most vicious of creatures in character and temperament.'

We know that the Zanji (blacks) are the least intelligent and the least discerning of mankind, and the least capable of understanding the consequences of actions.'

They [the Shu ubiyas] maintain that eloquence is prized by all people at all times - even the Zanji, despite their dimness, their boundless stupidity, their obtuseness, their crude perceptions and their evil dispositions, make long speeches.'

Fuck no, we aren't one species. The Fixation index, or FST, is a way to measure genetic distance between populations.

The FST between Whites (British) and Blacks (Bantu) is 0.23.

The FST between the common chimpanzee (Pan troglodytes) and the bonobo (Pan paniscus) is 0.103

>... which is half the White-Black difference despite the two being classified as separate species.

The FST between two gorilla species, Gorilla gorilla and Gorilla beringei is 0.04

>... or 1/6 the difference between Blacks and Whites.

The FST between humans and Neanderthals is less than 0.08

>... or about 1/3 the Black-White difference.

The FST between humans and homo erectus is 0.17

>... which is 3/4 the Black-White distance.

Thus Whites and Blacks are more genetically distant than two different chimpanzee species, two different gorilla species, humans vs Neanderthals, and humans vs homo erectus. If one is consistent and objective with taxonomic classification systems even in regards to human populations, Blacks and Whites could (and arguably should) be classified into separate species and at the very least into different.

Zimbabwe pleads for $1.5bn in food aid to prevent mass starvation

Zimbabwe is seeking $1.5bn (£1bn) in food aid to avoid mass starvation in the country. As the drought worsens, nearly a quarter of the population in the landlocked southern African nation face the risk of starving to death.

Government officials are appealing to local businesses and charities to help Harare combat brutal hunger across the nation. Zimbabwean authorities estimate the recent drought, the most severe in 20 years, has left three million people without food.

Highlights

- This study examines parental influences on the development of verbal intelligence.
- An adoption-based research design is used to control for genetic confounding.
- Parenting has a marginal and inconsistent influence on offspring IQ.

Abstract

The association between family/parenting and offspring IQ remains the matter of debate because of threats related to genetic confounding. The current study is designed to shed some light on this association by examining the influence of parenting influences on adolescent and young adult IQ scores. To do so, a nationally representative sample of youth is analyzed along with a sample of adoptees. The sample of adoptees is able to more fully control for genetic confounding. The results of the study revealed that there is only a marginal and inconsistent influence of parenting on offspring IQ in adolescence and young adulthood. These weak associations were detected in both the nationally representative sample and the adoptee subsample. Sensitivity analyses that focused only on monozygotic twins also revealed no consistent associations between parenting/family measures and verbal intelligence. Taken together, the results of these statistical models indicate that family and parenting characteristics are not significant contributors to variation in IQ scores. The implications of this study are discussed in relation to research examining the effects of family/parenting on offspring IQ scores.

Really? You believe it's all down to culture? Why on Earth would you choose that as the most rational explanation for what you see? You've seen evidence that even when born and bred into white culture blacks still do worse. Even the richest blacks only barely do better than the poorest whites. Yet it's all down to culture? Despite thousands of years with no contact (and therefore possible oppression) from other races, blacks created nothing. Despite hundreds of years of opportunity in white societies, blacks have never been truly successful. Despite money almost literally being thrown at them, despite prioritizing them over everyone else for jobs, blacks still remain in the dirt in every civilization, every culture, everywhere. Despite there being literally billions of blacks since contact with (and therefore possible adoption of) "superior white culture" — many times more whites than have existed at the same time — there has not been even one black Mozart, or Beethoven, or Newton, or even a less influential scientist (of which whites have bucketfuls) like Bacon or Maxwell or Faraday. Despite there being many African nations since the beginning of civilization, not even one has come even close to the success of even the poorest and smallest European nations.

And you think them equal? Despite tens of thousands of years of separation from the other races with no selection pressures for adaption, you think they've stayed the same as the others? Stayed equal? Despite every civilization that has encountered them thinking them inferior — from the Egyptians, to the Arabs, to the Romans and Europeans, to the Chinese — you think they're the same? Despite crime and violence and disorder and chaos wherever the Bacon or Maxwell or Faraday. Despite there being many African nations since the beginning of civilization, not even one has come even close to the success of even the poorest and smallest European nations.

And you think them equal? Despite tens of thousands of years of separation from the other races with no selection pressures for adaption, you think they've stayed the same as the others? Stayed equal? Despite every civilization that has encountered them thinking them inferior — from the Egyptians, to the Arabs, to the Romans and Europeans, to the Chinese — you think they're the same? Despite crime and violence and disorder and chaos wherever the Bacon or Maxwell or Faraday. Despite there being many African nations since the beginning of civilization, not even one has come even close to the success of even the poorest and smallest European nations.

And where does this culture come from? Is it just created in a vacuum? How does this "superior culture" come about? How could a superior culture come about if the people it is created by are not superior themselves?

Let's try a thought experiment. Assuming that all humans everywhere had the same predisposition to success and civilization-building, where would we expect the most successful societies to come about? If there are no differences in the people, the difference must come from the land. So, logically, the most powerful and successful civilizations must come from the most rich land. And which is better land? Africa, with its temperate and steady climate, good farmland, diversity of crops and wildlife, tons of ores and natural resources such as coal and oil, as well as large amounts of lumber? Or Europe, with its frigid and fluctuating climate, killing conditions (such as in winter), treacherous and often unfarmable terrain, limited usable crops and wildlife, and difficult-to-extract natural resources?

And what happens when we try to address these problems, assuming that it is all down to culture? We punish success, reward failure, tie lodestones around the necks of the successful, and forcibly integrate those who should never be integrated, inciting untold friction, suffering, cultural alienation, hatred, and effectively shoot our societies in the head. All for the sake of a belief without evidence that is held to religiously. And to solve this you'll cause more hatred, violence, and killing just as all leftist ideologies have everywhere when their deluded fantasies fail to live up to reality, from the French Revolution to modern fucking African Marxists (although they'd kill and rape anyway, so...).

Metaphors you're full of shit.

The Myth of Systemic Police Racism

Hold officers accountable who use excessive force. But there's no evidence of widespread racial bias.

George Floyd's death in Minneapolis has revived the Obama-era narrative that law enforcement is endemically racist. On Friday, Barack Obama tweeted that for millions of black Americans, being treated differently by the criminal justice system on account of race is "tragically, painfully, maddeningly 'normal.'" Mr. Obama called on the police and the public to create a "new normal," in which bigotry no longer "infects our institutions and our hearts."

Joe Biden released a video the same day in which he asserted that all African-Americans fear for their safety from "bad police" and black children must be instructed to tolerate police abuse just so they can "make it home." That echoed a claim Mr. Obama made after the ambush murder of five Dallas officers in July 2016. During their memorial service, the president said African-American parents were right to fear that their children may be killed by police officers whenever they go outside.

Minnesota Gov. Tim Walz denounced the "stain... of fundamental, institutional racism" on law enforcement during a Friday press conference. He claimed blacks were right to dismiss promises of police reform as empty verbiage.

This charge of systemic police bias was wrong during the Obama years and remains so today. However sickening the video of Floyd's arrest, it isn't representative of the 375 million annual contacts that police officers have with civilians. A solid body of evidence finds no structural bias in the criminal-justice system with regard to arrests, prosecution or sentencing. Crime and suspect behavior, not race, determine most police actions.

In 2019 police officers fatally shot 1,004 people, most of whom were armed or otherwise dangerous. African-Americans were about a quarter of those killed by cops last year (235), a ratio that has remained stable since 2015. That share of black victims is less than what the black crime rate would predict, since police shootings are a function of how often officers encounter armed and violent suspects. In 2018, the latest year for which such data have been published, African-Americans made up 53% of known homicide offenders in the U.S. and commit about 60% of robberies, though they are 13% of the population.

The police fatally shot nine unarmed blacks and 19 unarmed whites in 2019, according to a Washington Post database, down from 38 and 32, respectively, in 2015. The Post defines "unarmed" broadly to include such cases as a suspect in Newark, N.J., who had a loaded handgun in his car during a police chase. In 2018 there were 7,407 black homicide victims. Assuming a comparable number of victims last year, those nine unarmed black victims of police shootings represent 0.1% of all African-Americans killed in 2019. By contrast, a police officer is 18½ times more likely to be killed by a black male than an unarmed black male is to be killed by a police officer.

On Memorial Day weekend in Chicago alone, 10 African-Americans were killed in drive-by shootings. Such routine violence has continued—a 72-year-old Chicago man shot in the face on May 29 by a gunman who fired about a dozen shots into a residence; two 19-year-old women on the South Side shot to death as they sat in a parked car a few hours earlier; a 16-year-old boy fatally stabbed with his own knife that same day. This past weekend, 80 Chicagoans were shot in drive-by shootings, 21 fatally, the victims overwhelmingly black. Police shootings are not the reason that blacks die of homicide at eight times the rate of whites and Hispanics combined; criminal violence is.

The latest in a series of studies undercutting the claim of systemic police bias was published in August 2019 in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences. The researchers found that the more frequently officers encounter violent suspects from any given racial group, the greater the chance that a member of that group will be fatally shot by a police officer. There is "no significant evidence of antiblack disparity in the likelihood of being fatally shot by police," they concluded.

A 2015 Justice Department analysis of the Philadelphia Police Department found that white police officers were less likely than black or Hispanic officers to shoot unarmed black suspects. Research by Harvard economist Roland G. Fryer Jr. also found no evidence of racial discrimination in shootings. Any evidence to the contrary fails to take into account crime rates and civilian behavior before and during interactions with police.

The false narrative of systemic police bias resulted in targeted killings of officers during the Obama presidency. The pattern may be repeating itself. Officers are being assaulted and shot at while they try to arrest gun suspects or respond to the growing riots. Police precincts and courthouses have been destroyed with impunity, which will encourage more civilization-destroying violence. If the Ferguson effect of officers backing off law enforcement in minority neighborhoods is reborn as the Minneapolis effect, the thousands of law-abiding African-Americans who depend on the police for basic safety will once again be the victims.

The Minneapolis officers who arrested George Floyd must be held accountable for their excessive use of force and callous indifference to his distress. Police training needs to double down on de-escalation tactics. But Floyd's death should not undermine the legitimacy of American law enforcement, without which we will continue on a path toward chaos.

Raped in the Peace Corp now I post on MPC

(I can't make a new topic, so I'm posting in this one, for reasons that will be clear very very quickly. I'm disappointed though, because I had a great thread name ready: I Miss the AIDS Down in Africa - Gonna Take Some Time To Explain Away Race for You.)

So many people wanted to hear about my time in Africa, and I want to talk about it, but I'm not really sure which angle to attack it from. You see, not only was I living there, I was a...

Peace Corps Volunteer.

Yep. The pozzed of the pozzed. Actually, it was a good experience, and it started me on the path of the shitlord by exposing me not only to Africans, but also to people so far to the left you need to pop a Truveda just to have a conversation with them. The whole thing was extremely eye opening, and I could write another entire post about international aid generally and Peace Corps specifically, but I want this one just about Africa, Africans, and the way they live.

First, a caveat. Africa is huge, and I can only speak for the little corner I was in. I was assigned to a remote village in the Sahel, basically the transition between the rainforests of central Africa and the Sahara desert, in francophone West Africa. I was in a very stable country (though we had some terrorist scares), and I would not only go back in a heartbeat, I regularly recommend that people go on vacation there. It's a beautiful place: cheap, on the Atlantic, and open to (French speaking) foreigners. I have tons of shit to talk about it, though, but I'll lead with the positive.

The good:

As I mentioned in the post that spawned this one, tribal African society works for them. They're not smart, but they have strict, specific rules that they follow and that make things sorta work. By sorta work, I mean the power is on 6-8 hours a day, there is running water sometimes, and the roads have potholes so big it's safer to drive in the bush next to them. But in the small town/village I was in, there was basically no crime, it was very safe to walk around at night, and people got along really well with each other. How did they achieve this? If Asians are anti-people, well adapted to SCALED societies, Africans are the opposite. They can't handle scale, at all. When they live in villages of 100 to 1000, though, things are "functional". They need familial hierarchies to function, though. Blacks have no morality, they don't feel bad for doing anything the way you or I do. Their sense of shame and moral compunction is hierarchically imposed. There were a million little niggresshines going on every day, and if they got away with it, it was all good. But if an elder catches you, you're in for a world of hurt. Literally, because all punishment is corporal. They don't mess around with stern lectures. It's straight to the beatings, from a young age on.

The system also puts a huge premium on family and community, and nobody there had any desire to ever leave for good. Everyone wanted to get out to get paid, but nobody wanted to emigrate permanently to France or the US. They just wanted to make money, ship it home to "support" their family, and come back to have a little empire of dirt in the bush. They are also front-line fighters against shillies. They didn't stand for that shit, at all. If you wanted to come into their villages and build some shit, great. If you wanted to give them lectures about how they needed to accept gays or change their ways, mobs and rocks were in your future. Luckily I worked in Agricultural development, so I mostly got to give away stuff. At the time I felt bad for the ones getting the rocks, but looking back I just laugh. Take that, striver poons!

The bad:

1. Once, a friend of another volunteer wanted to earn some money by baking bread. He got a little bit of money together and used it to buy ingredients. He built a mud stove himself, and cooked 30 loaves of village bread" - basically mishapen, doughy baguettes. He took the bread to the road, and started to sell them, until his father came by. His father said, "You have bread! The family needs bread!" and took 20 loaves for himself and the rest of the kids (this particular father had 4 wives and 8 kids per wife). Our enterprising African friend was left bankrupt. He lost his entire initial investment and never made bread again.

This is the basic story of Africa: communalism gone insane. It is completely unthinkable to refuse a demand of an elder or a family member for money or food. People hid any small money they had, because if anyone knew they had it, there would be a line around the corner asking for loans and favors, and they would be honor-bound or whatever to say yes. I told my friends over and over to say no, and each time they politely explained to me that it was impossible. The whole system is built to pull people down to the lowest common denominator.

2. Every day, I ate the same meal - a huge communal bowl of rice, with fish and some vegetables. Every day, the family I lived with spent a good amount of money (for them) to buy bitter tomatoes and okra to put in the rice, despite the fact that nobody liked bitter tomatoes or okra. I asked, why do you waste so much money on these vegetables that nobody eats? They told me, because we don't want anyone to think we're poor.

Africans are all about face and presentation, to the point of self-ruin. We're talking about people for whom buying a couple vegetables has a huge impact on their bottom line, but they still do it. Saving money is basically impossible. I'm convinced that they have no conception of the future, aside from a vague idea that tomorrow will come. Cause and effect seemed to have no meaning. People who planned well, saved money and invested were not lauded or emulated, just dismissed as flukes or having received the blessing of Allah. Actually, Africans probably took to Islam like flies to shit because in Islam, everything flows directly from God - it is a religion that gives people permission to believe that everything is out of their hands, which they believe anyway.

3. A man asked me if I could give him 10 hectares of land and a diesel-electric water pump to irrigate it. This was not uncommon. The first thing people usually asked me when I told them I was an Agriculture Development person was for tractors, cars, livestock, anything. Completely shameless begging. Men in expensive silk clothes with nice black sedans would shamelessly beg for gimmeedats when they learned what I did. Anyway, I asked this particular guy what experience he had farming or gardening. He said none. I asked, then why do you want such a large scale enterprise? Why not get a small garden from the village chief and a used gas-pump to see how it goes? Maybe you'll even earn enough money to upgrade in a year or two. He said, well, my cousin got 10 hectares and a diesel-electric pump from the government, so he was going to wait until he could get it too.

Gimmeedats are international. It's disgusting. Every single cent of international aid is wasted on either bloodthirsty warlords, sniveling SWPL striver salaries, or gimmeedats for the underserving. In case you had any illusions, never give money to any international charity, ever. It breeds a mentality of helplessness and "mana from heaven", not to mention an entire caste of African hustlers whose only job is to pitch their villages for various causes. The worst thing about this is that the man was completely right to not try a small scale enterprise. He's African, they have infinite time. One day a government project will come to his village and give him his pump and his 10 hectares. He won't do shit with it, but he'll proudly show off his pump and everyone in the village will respect him for his achievement of receiving some gimmeedats.

4. During the festival of Eid al-Hada, a ram must be sacrificed because blah blah who cares. After killing and stringing the ram up into a tree for butchering, a gaggle of boys (they are always around in groups of 10-50, usually begging for presents and money because idiot white people always give it to them) rushed to the dying animal with a pair of scissors, snipped off its balls, and ran away with their prize. I asked the closest mother why, she said they're going to grill it - the balls are a prized treat for the boys. I asked, do the girls eat it too? Of course not, she said. They would get pregnant with a goat.

Africans are dumb as shit. Basically, they never grow up. You are dealing with 200 pound children. If you go into interactions with that mindset, things go alright, but if you expect anything adult from them, you'll be disappointed and frustrated at every turn. They believe in everything you can list - ghosts, angels, demons, curses, charms, blessings, and magic. Oh, and magic. They love to be a number of village magic battles, where charms and counter-charms were buried at people's doorsteps, protective wards were made, and potions were snuck into tea. It's a huge deal, and everyone pays big money (for them) to the local shamans and witch doctors to get all these magical trinkets. Yes, even in Islamic Africa, it's just like this. This African Islam is the same as South American Christianity - totally fucked in the head. They are pagan savages first and moon-worshipping goatefuckers second. They just slap a varnish of Islam on it - the magic charm has a Koranic verse in it - and go about their lives happily as before.

5. A volunteer once fronted enough money for the farmer he lived with to buy fertilizer. They spread it together, and the yield was recorded. In total, it was 9 fold over the year prior. Instead of taking the money back for the loan, said volunteer forced the farmer to buy fertilizer for the next year, and save it. The next year came and they used it again, and again the yield was 10 fold over the first non-fertilizer year. This time, though, the volunteer had left the country. The farmer didn't buy any fertilizer, and instead blew through the money he earned from his crop on frivolous crap and gifts to every extended family member who cast a shadow on his door. The next year his yields returned to the original level, and everyone went on with their lives as happy as before. The end.

This is my penultimate Africa story. There's a bit more to it - the Peace Corps showed graphs and charts of this particular case as a successful intervention. I only found out about the little coda because I specifically asked what happened the next year; they didn't decide to share that little fact in the larger meeting. It brings together everything - the waste, the stupidity, the lack of foresight, the inability to see cause and effect, the massive importance put on frivolous crap, and the way communities tear down their best members. Here's the takeaway: nobody who wasn't white on that farm saw the connection between the yields, the money they were making and the fertilizer. Nobody stopped to think hey, we should buy more of this.

That's the insanity of Africa. 200 pound children, blowing huge stacks of cash on magic charms while they grind out a subsistence livelihood on the border of the desert.

This is already super long, and I could really go on and on about this subject. There are more stories - the myths of the African family, more stories of faux-communalism, stories about crazy African religion and politics, and so on. The long and short of it, though, is this: they're not terrible people, they just shouldn't be anywhere near us. Africa is no shit the Garden of Eden. It's no mistake that the people living there are giant children. Despite tons of diseases and ferocious animals, they want for nothing. Trees growing fruit are everywhere. Every weed is edible. Before the Western-induced population bomb, I'm not even sure they even required agriculture to feed themselves. If we're going to live a world where complete ethnic cleansing and colonization is off the table, just let them have their little paradise and leave us alone. They have absolutely nothing to offer us nor anything to gain by interaction with the west. They're a people frozen in time from tens of thousands of years ago, and I have no trouble leaving them like that.

I used to teach in a black inner city school. Their issues are their own fault and I'm tired of pretending otherwise.

I've been a high school science teacher for a little under 10 years. I've primarily worked at poor urban schools with high Hispanic immigrant populations and I've loved most of my career. Yeah, some low points and difficult times but that's everyone right?

The year I taught at a black inner city school almost made me leave the profession entirely. I was entering my 5th year teaching and I decided to take on a new challenge. Local inner city schools had been advertising turn around initiatives, and I decided to give it a go as the school I was at had successfully completed a turn around initiative started when I had first arrived. The two schools were very similar with one major difference. The proportion of students who were listed as "economically disadvantaged" (poverty) was the same at both schools but I was leaving primarily Hispanic to go to primarily Black.

The entire year was a complete disaster from beginning to end. I could probably write an entire book about the shit I saw there, but I'm just going to give you the highlights, starting from least to most serious.

Class was basically optional. Kids would walk in or out constantly, if they showed up at all. Any attempts to enforce any kind of rules about tardiness and truancy was usually met with "fuck you nigga". And even if they did show up, they were rowdy and off task constantly. Very little education took place in that room. Or any of them rooms really. For example, one girl pulled out her phone, turned on some music, jumped on her desk and started dancing on top of the desk. I tried to get her down but she kept telling me "fuck you" over and over. This was at least weekly for her. This same little bitch also have a speech to the school board about the institutional forces that keep black people down. Before you accuse me of having shitty classroom management, I tried talking to my AP and my principal about what to do because I had never experienced anything like this. And they told me something I was going to hear repeatedly throughout the year. "It's just their culture. You have to respect that." It's important to note that I was LITERALLY the only white male in the building. Almost every other adult was black with a few Hispanic men and another white woman. The black female principal with a PhD in education told me it's just their culture and I have to respect that. Wow. I wish it ended there but it doesn't.

The crab bucket mentality is real. I had a handful of good kids, and coincidentally I'm sure, they were almost all African immigrants. One boy from Rwanda was accepted to STANFORD! Holy shit I was so proud of him and so happy for him. Know who wasn't? The college counselor trying to pressure him to change his mind and go to fucking Grambling instead. Said he was turning his back on his community by going to Stanford.

Trying to manage them was bad enough, but each class had about 40 kids in it. You might think this is a problem with funding but we got more money per kid than every other high school in the area (and this is a MAJOR city). It didn't go to hiring teachers, it went to just maintaining all the shit the kids just destroyed for fun. We issued each student a laptop, and it was a pretty small school, about 850 kids. Throughout the year we had to issue about 1000 replacements. The kids kept pawning them, or just destroying them for fun. Several times I caught groups of them just throwing the laptops against the wall or down the stairs, cackling and howling while taking turns filming it for Vine (this was before TikTok took off). Every single TI83 calculator in the building was stolen from every math and science teacher. But can't you just make them put it back before they leave? You think we didn't try? They'd howl and scream about any number of things and just storm out with it anyway. And again, couldn't do anything about it because the school cop told me, along with the principal, it's just their culture.

I don't want to hear shit about "well they can't worry about school when they're poor and may not make rent and are hungry" either. Every two weeks we handed out bags of groceries to every kid in addition to the school cafeteria serving free breakfast and lunch to the kids and free dinner later in the evening to students and their families. I don't know why, it was a fucking waste. They'd fish out the snacks and dump everything else. Hundreds of pounds of food wasted a month. We often tried to salvage what we could when they'd just throw the bags on the floor. And I know for a fact that almost all of the housing in the area was heavily subsidized section 8.

And we haven't even touched the real big issue yet, which is violence. Fights were a daily thing. There was pretty much at all times a fight going on somewhere in the halls or in the classroom. Usually the punishment for a fight was about an hour in ISS. A kid needed on average 5 fights before anything more substantial happened, like a one day suspension. Notice how I said "in the classroom" too? At least once a week a teacher got hit. I had quite a few take swings at me. Again, usually just sit in ISS for an hour, right back the next day. The first time a kid took a swing at me, principal demanded to know what I did to provoke him... apparently telling him to remain in his seat was enough to set him off, and it was my fault. Again, why? It's their culture.

And now the big one, where I decided I was done. A group of 6 of the biggest assholes followed me out to the parking lot and they showed me their knives. Said if they didn't get credit for my class toward graduation, they'd kill me. I was terrified. I ran to the school resource officer and the principal. The principal told me I had to give them extra credit. You guessed it, it's just their culture, these things happen. And we wouldn't want to wreck their lives with a police report over something like this would we? For the first time ever in my life, I told a supervisor to fuck off. I would do no such thing, and I would finish my contract to the letter, but I would do absolutely nothing extra of any kind, I was done with that shithole. I never walked the same path twice and kept my back to a wall at all times until in the parking lot where I was constantly looking over my shoulder, prepared to run at any time.

That was 3 years ago. I went to another school in the district, just as poor but Hispanic instead of black. The principal is also Hispanic and an alum of the school. And because of this school, I'm glad I didn't quit education. I love it here, it's just like the school I started off at. There's issues with poverty but they're good people trying to make the best of what they have and I go into work each day (not so much anymore with remote learning due to COVID, but you get what I mean) with a smile on my face. Yeah I have shitty kids, but we all do every year. I was deeply saddened by COVID because I didn't get to say a proper goodbye, I actually cried over that. Except 2017, when it was almost every kid, every period.

That sentence is burned into my brain. It's just their culture. If so, you'll have to forgive me when I'm not exactly sympathetic to your cause. Because you did it to yourself.

On Dec. 27, 1990, Charles left his apartment in Mandeville, the south side of Jacksonville, after arguing with his sister, P. J., over smoking his father, Dr. Phillips' cane. Six days later, her clashed body was found in the St. Johns River. 13 miles away. Her autopsy found no signs of foul play, But forensic testing found evidence of semen, and detective claims that the corpse's homicide victim, Dr. Phillips died.

After a man profiled was located from the sample, it was sent to the nationwide DNA bank, which matched it to a sample provided by Mitchell. He became a suspected offender for sexual contact with a 13 year old in 2003.

Allison Griffor was sleeping in her bed at her family's home in Charleston, South Carolina, early on Tuesday when a bullet from a shotgun fired through the front door hit her and lodged in her brain.

Her father William had gone to the front door when he heard it being kicked, but before he could open it shots were fired through and he was also hit. His daughter was sleeping in the front room.

"The bullets had went through the door, through the wall, shooting her in the head as she lay sleeping in her safe bed. I was injured in the incident, but our daughter was critically injured."

Christopher Jones' mother attended suburban San Ramon County. After switching schools to avoid gang violence, the 14-year-old was killed by a drive-by shooting in 1991, two months while riding his bike home.

The family says they never knew Jones was in trouble and the chase often then "leaves a more forward. They're walking with some police officers to talk about gang violence with young offenders in hopes of preventing attacks like their son's."

Jones' mother says she is relieved from jail after 10 years.

Lauren was a senior graduate with prize counts in his school. He was known to his teachers for the promise of doing clerical work for him, then, raped & stabbed her to death. He had sex with her corpse, then attempted to cut her leg so he could stuff her body in a clothes bin. Lauren left her body in a basement closet for six days before putting it by a trash bin outside the high school.

Lauren said Lauren agreed to have sex with him for $50, but that he refused to pay her afterwards & she stabbed him, forcing him to kill her. He finally admitted guilt & was sentenced to life in prison.

Pennsylvania man, 22, accused of raping four-year-old twins, SPITS on photographers as he is booked into NYC jail

Isaiah Metz, 22, of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, was taken into custody in Yonkers on Tuesday evening before being transferred to Manhattan. The NYPD was hunting him after he reportedly spit and punched officers inside a Manhattan homeless shelter around 4:30am on Tuesday. Police received a tip that Metz - who is wanted in Pennsylvania on 115 sex-related charges - was at the homeless shelter on early Tuesday and went to arrest him. The 22-year-old is accused of raping four-year-old twins he lived with after being adopted into a foster family in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. He was reportedly watching one of the twins while the other was at a doctor's appointment when he assaulted her on a recliner in July. The family said the girl was more emotional when they returned and later told them her vagina hurt. A DNA was conducted from a sample taken from her underwear and investigators said they could not rule out Metz. Pictures and video was later discovered on his phone showing him assaulting both twins, according to the National Center of Missing and Exploited Children.

Cancer research scientist and mother-of-two, 43, is murdered and her body dumped in a creek while out on her daily run in Texas - as cops name burglary suspect as person of interest

Sarmistha Sen, 43, (left) was found dead near a creek in Plano Saturday morning less than two hours after she went out on her regular run along the Chisholm Trail (inset). Her cause of death has not been released but it is being investigated as a homicide. Plano police have named Bakari Moncrief, 29, (right) a person of interest in her murder. Moncrief was arrested and charged for a burglary that also took place Saturday morning at a property close to where Sen's body was found. Plano police told DailyMail.com Wednesday afternoon that Moncrief has been charged with burglary but that he has not yet been charged over Sen's killing.

Cops have released three photos of the unnamed teenager asking the public to come forward with information on his whereabouts.

A young mother has revealed the horrific last moments of her twin girls' lives when her boyfriend shot them both dead, along with their grandfather.
 Megan Hiatt, 22, is recovering in a Jacksonville, Florida, hospital after Gawain Wilson, 28, blasted their five-month-olds and then turned the gun on her father Travis Hiatt, 49, before taking his own life. Police said there are five victims with one in critical condition. Police received a call of shots fired just before 4 p.m. on Tuesday. When they arrived, they found all the victims had gunshot wounds.
 'Mama, he killed them. He killed them in my arms. He made me hold them when he killed them. He made me watch,' Melissa Batch said, recounting her daughter's words to her from her hospital bed.

White Britons 'could be minority by 2066'

White British people will be a minority in their own country by 2066 if current immigration levels continue, a population expert has claimed.

"The share of Americans who identify as white and Christian has dropped below 50 percent, a transformation fueled by immigration and by growing numbers of people who reject organized religion altogether, according to a new survey released recently.

Christians overall remain a large majority in the U.S., at nearly 70 percent of Americans. However, white Christians, once predominant in the country's religious life, now comprise only 43 percent of the population, according to the Public Religion Research Institute, or PRRI, a polling organization based in Washington. Four decades ago, about eight in 10 Americans were white Christians.

The change has occurred across the spectrum of Christian traditions in the U.S., including sharp drops in membership in predominantly white mainline Protestant denominations such as Presbyterians and Lutherans; an increasing Latino presence in the Roman Catholic Church as some non-Hispanic white Catholics leave; and shrinking ranks of white evangelicals, who until recently had been viewed as immune to decline."

The politics of 2036, when Canada is as brown as it is white

JOHN IBBITSON PUBLISHED JANUARY 27, 2017 UPDATED APRIL 14, 2017 153 COMMENTS

Britain's "Visible Minorities" in the Year 1951

Here's the actual number of "visible minorities" in the 1951 census: 94,500.

Census year	Indians	Pakistanis and Bangladeshis	Chinese	Afro-Caribbeans	Black Africans	Total
1991	840,255	639,390	156,938	678,365	212,362	2,527,310
1981	855,025	360,023	120,123	545,744	79,649	1,960,564
1971	340,370	127,565	60,000	360,000	40,000	927,935
1961	81,400	81,400	29,600	171,800	19,800	384,000
1951	30,800	30,800	12,000	15,300	5,600	94,500

Table 2 Estimated size of the major components of Britain's visible minority populations: 1951 - 1991
Sources: 1991 Census Ethnic Group Tables, 1981 Census Country of Birth of Household Head Tables, 1971 Census Country of Birth Tables, and EJB Rose (1969) Table 1.0

The population of Britain in 1951 was a little over 50 million, so the 94,500 visible minorities represented 0.19% of the population. So that's fewer than 2 out of every 1000.

Canada was 97% White in 1971

1971	Census. Of the population of 21,568,310, 15.3% (3,295,530) were immigrants (i.e. born outside Canada). 68% of immigrants had been in Canada for 10 years or more. 49.7% of immigrants were female. 12% of immigrants lived in rural areas (compared to 26% of people born in Canada). 79% of immigrants were born in Europe (28% in the UK, 12% in Italy, 6% in Germany, 5% each in Poland and the USSR). "Asiatic countries" were the birthplace for under 4% of immigrants. All African countries are grouped under "other countries": 12% of immigrants. In terms of "ethnic group", 44.6% were from the British Isles, 28.7% French, 6% German, 3.4% Italian, and 2.7% Ukrainian. There were 118,815 Chinese, 67,925 "East Indian", 37,260 Japanese, 34,445 "Negro", 28,025 West Indian and 26,665 "Syrian-Lebanese". 97% of the population was of European origin.
1971-72	The U.S. was the largest source country of immigration, in part because of the large numbers (possibly 30,000-40,000) of draft dodgers and deserters unwilling to fight in Vietnam who found refuge in Canada.
1971	The federal government announced its policy of multiculturalism .

Replacement Migration:
Is It a Solution to Declining and Ageing Populations?

United Nations projections indicate that over the next 50 years, the populations of virtually all countries of Europe as well as Japan will face population decline and population ageing. The new challenges of declining and ageing populations will require comprehensive reassessments of many established policies and programmes, including those relating to international migration.

Focusing on these two striking and critical population trends, the report considers replacement migration for eight low-fertility countries (France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Republic of Korea, Russian Federation, United Kingdom and United States) and two regions (Europe and the European Union). Replacement migration refers to the international migration that a country would need to offset population decline and population ageing resulting from low fertility and mortality rates.

"It is very good that there are yellow French, black French, brown French. They show that France is open to all races and has a universal vocation. But [it is good] on condition that they remain a small minority. Otherwise, France would no longer be France. We are still primarily a European people of the white race, Greek and Latin culture, and the Christian religion.

Don't tell me stories! Muslims, have you gone to see them? Have you watched them with their turbans and jellabiyas? You can see that they are not French! Those who advocate integration have the brain of a hummingbird. Try to mix oil and vinegar. Shake the bottle. After a second, they will separate again.

Arabs are Arabs, the French are French. Do you think the French body politic can absorb ten million Muslims, who tomorrow will be twenty million, after tomorrow forty? If we integrated, if all the Arabs and Berbers of Algeria were considered French, would you prevent them to settle in France, where the standard of living is so much higher? My village would no longer be called Colombey-The-Two-Churches but Colombey-The-Two-Mosques."

A high-performing primary school has missed out on Ofsted's top grade after being judged too English.

Pupils at the rural primary lacked 'first-hand experience of the diverse make-up of modern British society', declared the watchdog.

However, around 97 per cent of the population in the town to which the school belongs are white.

Middle Rasen Primary School in Market Rasen, Lincolnshire, has missed out on an 'outstanding' rating from Ofsted because it is 'too English'. Pictured: Headteacher Melanie Brunton (back middle) with pupils

Inspectors penalised the 104-pupil school for not being multicultural enough, despite 97 per cent of the town being white and the majority of pupils not being from ethnic backgrounds

Ofsted refused it an 'outstanding' rating and graded it 'good' instead.

It said the school was failing to do enough to ensure pupils understand the 'cultural diversity of modern British society' and experience 'first-hand interaction with counterparts from different backgrounds'.

But parents complained Middle Rasen Primary in Market Rasen was being punished for factors outside its control and had effectively been told it was 'too English'.

Driffield mural divides opinion over lack of diversity

A mural designed as a tribute to shop staff who worked through the pandemic has been criticised because it "screams welcome to our white town".

Driffield Town Council said the artwork depicted well-known personalities who worked at independent businesses.

However, some residents took to social media to point out it failed to represent anyone with disabilities or from ethnic minority backgrounds.

The council said the temporary work was "an attempt to boost the town".

Big Swedish Companies Draw Flak for Hiring 'White' Staff

EUROPE 16:23 26.02.2015 (updated 16:33 26.02.2015)

Swedish broadcaster SVT has chastised the country's ten largest companies for failing to promote foreign, non-white employees to the most senior positions.

Swedish television network SVT has castigated the country's ten largest companies for failing to promote non-white, foreign-born workers to their most senior positions, local sources said.

SVT specifically looked into the ethnic make-up of the boards of Volvo, Ericsson, Skanska, Hennes & Mauritz (H&M), Electrolux, TeliaSonera, SCA, Nordea, Sandvik and ICA, where just eleven out of ninety top staff reportedly have a non-European background.

Nine of those people were reported to have American backgrounds and two were Australians.

The broadcaster said that a "lack of people of foreign origin" came despite the fact that some of these ten companies had ever-increasing clout in the emerging markets of Asia and South America.

At the same time, the television network lauded the forestry firm SCA for deviating from the "white Western norm" by appointing American-Cuban Barbara Millan Thoralfsson.

H&M quickly issued a statement to respond to the criticism.

"The people who today sit in senior management positions and on the board are appointed for their knowledge, expertise and many years of experience working at H&M both in Sweden and abroad. Overall, this means that together with H&M's country managers, they can develop H&M as a fast growing fashion company," the statement said.

Meanwhile, people have surfed social networking websites to discuss the issue using the hashtag #vitablog which means 'white company' in Swedish.

Some commentators, for their part, have insisted that companies should recruit and develop staff with more diverse "skills and experiences" instead of focusing on the ethnic background of employees.

German Politician Tells Germans Not to Fear Becoming an Ethnic Minority: “Many Things Will Be Better”

cazkdal, Diversity Macht Frei, August 7, 2018 <https://archive.fo/36ISE>

The German politician, Barbara John, of the nominally conservative CDU party (Angela Merkel's party), has written an article telling Germans not to worry about becoming an ethnic minority.

This appears to be part of the strategy switch I wrote about before from White Genocide Denial to White Genocide Acceptance.

In Germany it is only a question of time until people of immigrant background form a majority of the population in the larger cities. That point has already been reached in Frankfurt am Main: back in 2017, 51.2% of the city's inhabitants had not been born in Germany or had non-German parents. Augsburg and Stuttgart are the next candidates or have already reached that status. Across the country, however, only one in four inhabitants have an immigrant background, the Federal Statistics Office reported a few days ago.

...The trend towards a rapidly growing proportion of immigrants is irreversible. Fears are already spreading, but also hopes.

She points to Rotterdam and Amsterdam, where the ancestral inhabitants are already a minority, as pioneers of this change. They offer a reassuring example, she says.

It became apparent that the great fear of many of the indigenous inhabitants that they would now themselves become an insignificant minority was unfounded. It was a mistake to believe there would be a new majority that would take their place.

It's OK because you'll just be one minority among others, she declares, not ruled over by a new dominant race. (snip)

The new population majority consists of many immigrant groups who differ enormously from one another ethnically, culturally, religious, economically and by education. They often have disputes among themselves as well as other groups, just like the indigenous people. In this way new political alliances form beyond people with and without an immigrant background. A second certainty is unfamiliar but confirmed: it is no longer the indigenous majority who are solely responsible for economic and social progress, but society as a whole. So many things will be different and many things better too.

{snip} You should allow people who express hatred for you now to acquire power over you because once they have deprived you of power, they will stop expressing hatred for you. {snip}

{snip}

EU should 'undermine national homogeneity' says UN migration chief

By Brian Wheeler
Political reporter, BBC News

The EU should “do its best to undermine” the “homogeneity” of its member states, the UN’s special representative for migration has said.

Peter Sutherland told peers the future prosperity of many EU states depended on them becoming multicultural.

He also suggested the UK government’s immigration policy had no basis in international law.

He was being quizzed by the Lords EU home affairs sub-committee which is investigating global migration.

Mr Sutherland, who is non-executive chairman of Goldman Sachs International and a former chairman of oil giant BP, heads the Global Forum on Migration and Development, which brings together representatives of 160 nations to share policy ideas.

He told the House of Lords committee migration was a “crucial dynamic for economic growth” in some EU nations “however difficult it may be to explain this to the citizens of those states”.

‘More open’

An ageing or declining native population in countries like Germany or southern EU states was the “key argument and, I hesitate to the use word because people have attacked it, for the development of multicultural states”, he added.

Historian: Museums need to 'reconsider' European art exhibits because ... white supremacy

<https://archive.fo/uZgpc>

COLLEGE FIX STAFF · DECEMBER 30, 2018

A Philadelphia-based art historian and curator believes exhibitions of European art in American museums should be "reconsidered" in light of "a surge in white supremacist violence" across the country.

Alexander Kaufmann says that "[b]ecause the centering of Europe is baked into the architecture" of museums, and "usually inhabit the largest and most central galleries," people might not notice a connection to white supremacy.

"But white supremacists do," he adds ominously.

"Europe's cultural prestige is their evidence for the racial superiority of white America," Kaufmann writes in Hyperallergic. White supremacists and white nationalists gather at museums because that's "where Europe's cultural patrimony is most visibly singled out as exceptional."

White supremacy notwithstanding, American museums' original missions — "provid[ing] instruction for the industrial classes" and helping the country achieve the goal of becoming the "noblest development of humanity" — have long required a response, Kaufmann argues, and the activism of groups like the Black Emergency Cultural Coalition and the Guerrilla Girls can provide just that.

"After the violence in Charlottesville, Charleston, and Pittsburgh," Kaufmann says, "our encyclopedic museums must take steps within their galleries of European Art to combat white supremacist ideology." (But are women who run around in gorilla masks "to expose gender and ethnic bias [and] corruption in politics, art, film, and pop culture" really part of a serious solution?)

Here's some of what Kaufmann proposes:

- * Disrupt the myths of a singular triumphant civilization encompassing all of Western Europe and extending from Ancient Greece to today. Our grouping of French, British, German, Italian, and Spanish art in suites of "European" galleries, usually the most prominent in the museum, supports a historical fiction present in white nationalists' claims of racial superiority and in their aggrievement towards globalization: that of a world dominant civilization unified by a shared racial identity. Against the fantasy of commonality within "Fortress Europe," we must learn how to tell the story of Europe's historical disharmony and integration in global geographies of empire, trade, and migration.

- * Challenge the notion that the cultural life of Europe was uniformly white, heteropatriarchal, and Christian. Jews, Muslims, women, queer people, and people of color pervade the history of European art. After centuries of minimization, we must call attention to their presence.

- * Tell the histories of our collections. In November, Decolonize This Place activists occupied the Egyptian galleries at the Brooklyn Museum with a banner reading, "How was this acquired? By whom? For whom? At whose cost?" Visitors to European art collections have the same questions. Few know why paintings from European royal collections are in their cities. Our silence on this matter promotes the idea of America's natural inheritance of European culture.

Lastly, the "overwhelming whiteness" of museum staffs must be addressed, Kaufmann states, as currently there is "no effort specifically directed towards diversifying European Art."

They're already among the "least diverse spaces" in majority-white institutions, he continues, and "the least diverse along virtually every axis: socio-economic background, religion, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation."

Students remove Shakespeare portrait in English dept., aiming for inclusivity

Penn English professor and Department Chair Jed Esty was surprised to find a large portrait of William Shakespeare waiting in his office.

A group of students removed the iconic portrait from the walls of Fisher-Bennett Hall and delivered it to Esty's office after an English Department town hall meeting discussing the election, which took place on Thursday December 1. They replaced it with a photo of Audre Lorde, a black female writer.

Oxford University to replace 'male, pale and stale' image with gay, female and black icons

Oxford University is replacing portraits of famous men with gay, female and black icons to counter its 'male, pale and stale' image, it has emerged.

Earlier this year David Cameron, the Prime Minister, led calls for the university to take more ethnic minority students as figures revealed Oxford had only taken 27 black undergraduate students in 2014.

It followed calls from the Rhodes Must Fall movement to 'decolonise' the university's curriculum.

Yale ‘decolonizes’ English dept. after complaints studying white authors ‘actively harms’ students

ARIYISA DAMMON · YALE UNIVERSITY · OCTOBER 27, 2017

<https://archive.is/GZebd>

English majors no longer required to take class focused on Chaucer, Shakespeare

A year and a half after a petition circulated calling for Yale to “decolonize the English department,” the first students are enrolled in a new course created by the department to increase the breadth of the curriculum and combat claims of departmental racism.

What’s more, new requirements are in place to ensure a more “diversified” slate of courses.

Previous requirements for the major included two courses in “Major English Poets,” including Chaucer, Shakespeare, Donne, Milton and Eliot, among others. But that two-course series petitioners had deemed actively harmful due to its focus on white male poets. The series is no longer a graduation requirement for Yale’s English majors.

The petition. a Google document which has since been made private, critiqued the perceived whiteness of the English department requirements: “A year spent around a seminar table where the literary contributions of women, people of color, and queer folk are absent actively harms all students, regardless of their identity.”

“It’s time for the English major to decolonize — not diversify — its course offerings,” the petition added. “A 21st century education is a diverse education: we write to you today inspired by student activism across the university, and to make sure that you know that the English department is not immune from the collective call to action.”

Nearly a year after the petition, around seven months ago, Yale’s English faculty voted to “diversify” the curriculum. At the time of the vote, the director of the department’s undergraduate studies, Jessica Brantley, told The Yale Daily News: “We’ve constructed a curriculum that has inclusion as its goal, embedded in the structures of its requirements, and I’m very excited to implement and develop that curriculum further.”

The reconfiguring of the English department’s required courses did not directly address the demands of the petition to do away with the Major English Poets sequences altogether; the courses still exist. The reconfiguration also did not refocus the program’s pre-1800 and pre-1900 literature requirement to address issues of race, gender, and sexuality as demanded by the petition.

Instead, the English department now allows students to fill three required prerequisites from a choice of four different courses: Readings in English Poetry 1, Readings in English Poetry 2, Readings in American Literature, and a newly created course, Readings in Comparative World English Literature.

Because Chaucer and Shakespeare are both studied in English Poetry 1, these expanded options mean that a student could graduate from the program without ever reading either of these authors.

Readings in English Poetry 2 focuses on more recent poets, including Milton through Eliot and other modern writers.

Meanwhile, the newly developed Comparative World English course, which debuted this fall, is taught by English professor Stephanie Newell.

Her research focuses on “the public sphere in colonial West Africa and issues of gender, sexuality, and power as articulated through popular print cultures,” according to her faculty bio.

Other courses she has taught at Yale include “Contemporary African Fiction: Challenges to Realism,” “South African Writing After Apartheid,” and “Postcolonial World Literatures, 1945 to Present,” her bio states.

According to Professor Newell, there was significant interest in the course during the fall semester. The current class has 20 students, which is a larger seminar-style course compared to many other Yale courses, which are capped at 15 or 18.

Reached via email by The College Fix, Newell described her teaching style in this course as “the opposite of ‘close reading’ — we spend a great deal of time discussing cultural, linguistic and historical contexts, and we have read and discussed some classic works of postcolonial theory in conjunction with the primary texts. Likewise, when students write essays, I encourage them to undertake secondary reading and research, as well as to analyze primary texts.”

“I haven’t had any feedback from the students who led the petition as to whether or not they are satisfied with the overall changes in the major,” Newell told The Fix. “Obviously, there will be a vital opportunity at the end of semester for students to give feedback on this particular course in their evaluations.”

According to its course description, English 128: Readings in Comparative World English Literature still features a number of white male writers, including Daniel Defoe, John Millington Synge, and James Joyce. Other writers featured on the syllabus for this fall include Jean Rhys, Alice Munro, Ngugi wa Thiong’o, and Salman Rushdie.

Art History Department to scrap survey course
MARGARET HEDEMAN & MATT KRISTOFFERSEN 12:31 AM, JAN 24, 2020

Yale will stop teaching a storied introductory survey course in art history, citing the impossibility of adequately covering the entire field — and its varied cultural backgrounds — in one course.

Decades old and once taught by famous Yale professors like Vincent Scully, “Introduction to Art History: Renaissance to the Present” was once touted to be one of Yale College’s quintessential classes. But this change is the latest response to student uneasiness over an idealized Western “canon” — a product of an overwhelmingly white, straight, European and male cadre of artists.

Straight? Leonardo, Botticelli, Michelangelo, Caravaggio, Sargent, Hockney, etc etc ...

This spring, the final rendition of the course will seek to question the idea of Western art itself — a marked difference from the course’s focus at its inception. Art history department chair and the course’s instructor Tim Barringer told the News that he plans to demonstrate that a class about the history of art does not just mean Western art. Rather, when there are so many other regions, genres and traditions — all “equally deserving of study” — putting European art on a pedestal is “problematic,” he host.

... While concerns about the class’s singular focus in Western art has led to its cancellation, student enrollment in Barringer’s course skyrocketed this semester after the department’s plan was announced. Over 400 students shopped the class last week, though the course is capped at 300 due to constraints in the number of sections that the YUAG can handle. ...

According to Barringer, the class will still cover Western art chronologically from 1300 to the present and hopscotch across European art movements under the roof of the Yale University Art Gallery. Students in sections will still examine objects directly from Yale’s vast collections.

In his syllabus note to potential students on Canvas, an online course management tool, Barringer wrote that the emphasis would be placed on the relationship between European art and other world traditions. The class will also consider art in relation to “questions of gender, class and ‘race’ and discuss its involvement with Western capitalism,” Barringer wrote. Its relationship with climate change will be a “key theme,” he wrote.

Now that’s funny.

Barringer has also focused attention on the course’s written assignments. He said that he will invite students to write an essay nominating a work of art that has been left out of the course’s curriculum or its textbook.

Like the changes to the course itself, this essay is designed to challenge long-held views of art history.

“I’m really looking forward to seeing what works the students come up with to counteract or undermine my own narratives,” he wrote.

Hopefully, Women of Color will nominate their own selves entitled “Me at My Hair.”

... “My biggest critique of the decision is that it’s a disservice to undergrads,” Mahlon Sorensen ’22 said. “If you get rid of that one, all-encompassing course, then to understand the Western canon of art, students are going to have to take multiple art history courses. Which is all well and good for the art history major, but it sucks for the rest of us, which, I would say, make up the vast majority of the people who are taking [HSAR 115].”

The decision to get rid of this survey art history course resembles the English Department’s move to “decolonize” its degree requirements in 2017. At the time, the department made a sequence titled “Major English Poets” optional for majors.

For years, the Directed Studies program — a six-credit sequence for first-year students focusing on philosophy, literature and political philosophy — has also fielded criticisms about its exclusive focus on the Western canon.

The fundamental problem is that Western man came up with more ideas worth studying than any other identity group.

After such knowledge, what forgiveness?

Students demand Plato, Descartes and other white philosophers be dropped from curriculum

Students at a prestigious London university say it is part of a wider campaign to ‘decolonize’ the university

They are said to be the founding fathers of Western philosophy, whose ideas underpin civilized society.

But students at a prestigious London university are demanding that such figures as Plato, Descartes and Immanuel Kant be largely dropped from the curriculum because they are white.

The School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS)’s student union is insisting that when studying philosophy, ‘the majority of philosophers on our courses’ should be from Africa and Asia.

They say it is part of wider campaign to “decolonize” the university, as they seek to “address the structural and epistemological legacy of colonialism.”

It comes after education leaders warned that all universities will be forced to pander to the demands of “snowflake” students, however unreasonable they might be.

Under proposed reforms to higher education, the government wants to place student satisfaction at the heart of a new ranking system, but its critics fear could undermine academic integrity.

Sir Roger Scruton, the philosopher, said the demands suggest “ignorance.” “You can’t rule out a whole area of intellectual endeavour without having investigated it, and clearly they haven’t investigated what they mean by white philosophy,” he told The Mail on Sunday.

“If they think there is a colonial context from which Kant’s Critique of Pure Reason arose, I would like to hear it.”

If they think there is a colonial context from which Kant’s Critique of Pure Reason arose, I would like to hear it
The vice-chancellor of Buckingham University, Sir Anthony Seldon, added: “There is a real danger political correctness is getting out of control. We need to understand the world as it was and not to rewrite history as some might like it to have been.”

The student union at SOAS, a leading centre for the study of Asia, Africa and the Middle East, states that “decolonizing” the university and “confronting the white institution” is one of its priorities for the academic year.

It says that “white philosophers” should be studied only “if required,” adding that their work should be taught solely from a “critical standpoint.” “For example, acknowledging the colonial context in which so-called ‘Enlightenment’ philosophers wrote within,” it says.

The head of SOAS’s Religions and Philosophies department, Erica Hunter, said the union’s viewpoint was “rather ridiculous,” adding: “I would firmly resist dropping philosophers or historians just because it was fashionable.”

However, Dr. Deborah Johnston, an administrator at the university, said: “One of the great strengths of SOAS is that we have always looked at world issues from the perspective of the regions we study — Asia, Africa and the Middle East.

“Informed and critical debate and discussion about the curriculum we teach is a healthy and proper part of the academic enterprise.”

“We’ve got to tell a lie. We’ll go back into history and there will be black people where, historically, there wouldn’t have been, and we won’t dwell on that.”

BIDEN ATTACKS AMERICA’S ‘WHITE MAN’S CULTURE’

‘This is English jurisprudential culture, a white man’s culture’

Mar 27, 2019 9:33 AM

By Tom Elliott

<https://archive.fo/BqTOS>

Former vice president and likely 2020 presidential candidate, Joe Biden, attacked the United States’ “white man’s culture,” during an appearance at the Biden Courage Awards, which honors those working to combat sexual assault on college campuses. Biden said America’s racist culture is why Anita Hill wasn’t able to stop Clarence Thomas’ nomination to the Supreme Court.

“A really notable woman, Anita Hill, professor, showed the courage of a lifetime talking about her experience being harassed by Clarence Thomas,” Biden said at the New York City banquet. “We knew a lot less about the extent of harassment back then, over 30 years ago. But she paid a terrible price. She was abused through the hearing. She was taken advantage of. Her reputation was attacked.”

“I wish I could have done something,” he continued. “I opposed Clarence Thomas nomination. I voted against him. But I also realized there was a real and perceived problem the committee faced.”

Biden squarely blamed white people for Clarence Thomas being believed over Anita Hill.

“They were a bunch of white guys,” he said. “No, I mean it sincerely, a bunch of white guys hearing this testimony in the Senate Judiciary Committee. So when Anita Hill, when Anita Hill came to testify, she faced a committee that didn’t fully understand what the hell is all about. To this day I regret I couldn’t come up with a way to get a kind of hearing she deserved, given the courage she showed by reaching out to us. The hearing she deserved was a hearing where she was respected, where the tone and the questioning was not hostile and as sullied, where the fact that she stepped forward was recognized as an act of courage and in of itself. Because let’s face it, back in 1991 it took a lot of courage to take on a man who was so much a part of the establishment and the power structure.”

Biden traced the episode back to English common law in the 1300s, which he said enabled spousal abuse.

“You all know what the phrase rule of thumb means? Where it derived from?” Biden asked. “In English common law, not codification or common law, back in the late 1300s, so many women were dying at the hands of her husbands because they were chattel, just like the cattle or the sheep, that the Court of Common Law decided they had to do something about the extent of the deaths. So, you know what they said? No man has a right to chastise his woman with a rod thicker than the circumference of his thumb. This is English jurisprudential culture, a white man’s culture. Their’s got to change it’s got to change.”

Ontario school board tosses Shakespeare for indigenous writers

When parents in Ontario's Lambton Kent District School Board learned the mandatory Grade 11 English course was being replaced with an indigenous literature course, their responses often invoked that 500-year-old icon whose shadow still falls over all English writing.

"So my kid doesn't have to study Shakespeare?" was the common reply, said superintendent of education Mark Sherman.

As of this September, for those in Grade 11 at least, the answer is no. Instead, they will be reading and studying novels such as Indian Horse by Richard Wagamese, Medicine River by Thomas King, My Name is Seepeetza by Shirley Sterling, or As Long as the Rivers Flow by former Ontario Lieutenant-Governor James Bartleman.

This indigenous turn of a high school curriculum is an abrupt departure from the Canadian high school standard of mainly studying literature from the two great cultures against which Canadian-ness is traditionally triangulated — Britain and America.

"Hey, I love Lord of the Flies. I love Shakespeare," Sherman said. "But really, we're talking about 15th century Venetian landlords (Romeo and Juliet) or something like that. Does that resonate with Canadian kids? Or the British schoolboy class structure?"

Modern plays in the high school rotation are likewise dominated by New York playwrights like Arthur Miller, to the exclusion of indigenous Canadians like Tomson Highway.

Students will still have the chance to study The Catcher in the Rye and King Lear, for example, in the other four compulsory English courses over their time in high school. "This is just taking a part of it and trying to make it more relevant to the modern Canadian student," Sherman said.

Until now, the board has offered optional native studies courses in Grade 11, focused on history and culture more than literature. Some schools have also occasionally run native-focused Grade 11 literature courses, including several pilot programs designed to test this new curriculum shift. When it comes into effect in September, it will make an indigenous literature course a constant part of every student's education.

"It has all the same curriculum expectations as any senior English course would have," Sherman said. It involves writing, reading, presentation, dialogue, construction of arguments, topic choice, all set up in a way that recognizes and respects the sophistication of the curious teenage mind.

He pointed out two current failings of the traditional Shakespeare and Salinger approach in his board, which serves four First Nations communities as well as the regions of Sarnia and Chatham-Kent. Not only do indigenous students not see their culture reflected in their curriculum, and become disengaged as a result, but non-indigenous students are not made to engage scholastically with First Nations until late in the educational game. As a result, they can lack an important Canadian perspective.

"We should start building perspective earlier," Sherman said. "In a senior level English course, they have a very high level of moral reasoning and dialogue."

400 years after his death, why should we care about Shakespeare?

Shakespeare's language was so pithy and ahead of its time that it still peppers our everyday speech

There is also a financial incentive, in that the board gets more funding for offering courses on indigenous topics, money that Sherman said has been used for professional development for teachers, many of whom are not indigenous themselves, and to hire a special projects teacher for indigenous studies.

As he describes it, parents and students could not be happier.

"It's really taken off," Sherman said. "Normally with any big change you expect some discontent. There has been negligible negative feedback. I think today's students, they see things in the media, they want to know more about it, so now it's just part of the natural course to say 'Hey, we have some brilliant indigenous writers out there. This was created in Canada. This wasn't written 100 years ago in Leeds.'"

Khilnani said she had fantasized about 'unloading a revolver into the head of any white person' who got in her way. She went on to say that white people feel they are being bullied when people of color bring up race. At various other points, she described white people as being 'out of their minds' and said that they make her 'blood boil'.

The civil liberties group has come under fire recently from the Left for defending the free speech rights of conservative provocateur Milo Yiannopoulos and alt-right groups.

The backlash against the ACLU for representing the organizers of the alt-right rally in Charlottesville, Va., that led to violence forced the group to backtrack a bit from its pro-free speech stance.

Last week, it announced in response to that wave of outrage that it would no longer immediately defend groups that bring guns to demonstrations.

The End of an Era ... for White Males

As demographics change, so does the definition of privilege.

White men have had a great run. From the rise of the Greeks to the birth of Western-based global empires, they have controlled much of the world or sought to. So much of history is a consequence of decisions made by—and at the best of—the white guys in charge.

USC PROF: 'WHITENESS' MUST BE 'BY ANY AND ALL MEANS, DESTROYED'

Why is the University of Southern California allowing this hate-preacher to teach students?

The University of Southern California is employing a self-described "black identity extremist" who says "whiteness" "must be, by any and all means, destroyed."

Charles H. F. Davis, according to his bio, is an "assistant professor of clinical education at the Rossier School of Education at the University of Southern California and chief strategy officer and director of research at the USC Race and Equity Center."

A look at his Twitter profile shows it's filled with anti-white racial hate and glamorizes the murder of police.

Why the 'End' of White Men Is Actually Good for White Men

Hugo Schwyzer

More than 200 years of American bro-ocracy have come to an end.

It's not just the election results. While white country clubs and Congress, the cultural and political influence of the melanin-deficient male is unmistakably on the wane. This is a good thing for everyone else, of course. But it's also a good thing for the dudes who get to lay down the "white man's burden."

The day after the election, I tweeted that I was glad that "middle-aged, middle-class white men like me no longer have sole control of the levers of power." A friend in my same demographic shot back grimly that "after all, we are the cause of all that is wrong and soul-less in the world, or so the narrative goes." We've all heard a variation on that point before, as white dudes complain that they're unfairly held accountable for historic and contemporary injustices. Whining about "reverse racism" or about being "blamed" for the exclusionary practices of those who shared (and share) our color, our class, and our sex doesn't change the reality that we're the ones who've enjoyed unearned advantages for eons.

Debiasing Desire: Addressing Bias & Discrimination on Intimate Platforms

JEVAN HUTSON, University of Washington School of Law, USA
JESSIE G. TAIT, Cornell Tech, USA
SOLON BAROCAS, Information Science, Cornell University, USA
KAREN LEVY, Information Science, Cornell University, USA

Designing technical systems to be resistant to bias and discrimination represents vital new terrain for researchers, policymakers, and the anti-discrimination project more broadly. We consider bias and discrimination in the context of popular online dating and hookup platforms in the United States, which we call intimate platforms. Drawing on work in social-justice-oriented and Queer HCI, we review design features of popular intimate platforms and their potential role in exacerbating or mitigating interpersonal bias. We argue that focusing on platform design can reveal opportunities to reshape troubling patterns of intimate contact without overriding users' decisional autonomy. We identify and address the difficult ethical questions that nevertheless come along with such intervention, while urging the social computing community to engage more deeply with issues of bias, discrimination, and exclusion in the study and design of intimate platforms.

4 INTIMATE INEQUITIES ONLINE

While discrimination certainly occurred (and continues to occur) in offline spaces, intimate platforms provide easy-to-use features that allow users to act on such preferences. As platforms become centralized marketplaces for finding intimate partners, even small design decisions that impact matching behavior can have significant effects in the aggregate.

Extensive research documents disparities in racial preferences in online dating. As OKCupid founder and data scientist Christian Rudder stated of the matches formed on his site, "when you're looking at how two American strangers behave in a romantic context, race is the ultimate confounding factor" [79]. For example, white users of OKCupid are more likely to receive messages or have their messages responded to than their non-white peers, while Asian men and black women are least likely to receive messages or responses [80]. Heterosexual women of all races prefer white over nonwhite partners [80, 91]. White men and women of all ages are more likely to pursue dates with white rather than non-white partners [82] and are least likely to date outside their race [77]. While Asian and Latino men and women demonstrate comparable patterns of racial exclusion [77]. College students are more likely to exclude blacks, particularly black women, as possible dates [4]. Black men and women are ten times more likely to message whites on an intimate platform than whites are to message blacks [65]. The extent of self-segregation in online dating, however, is shown to peak at the first stage of contact: users are more likely to communicate across racial boundaries when reciprocating than when initiating romantic interest [60]. Importantly, users who receive messages across racial boundaries engage in more new interracial exchanges than they would have otherwise [60].

case of CoffeeMeetsBagel, the platform has implemented an algorithm that provides users with a conservative interpretation of what they might seek. The user's stated choice is to be open to exploration, and instead of embracing this preference and offering diverse or creative suggestions that expand the user's field of potential matches, it instead intentionally narrows that field based on inferred preferences. Second, it assumes that a platform and its algorithm should strive to reproduce the preferences and choices of existing users. There is no indication to users of what data are used to form recommendations, or how such data were processed or analyzed. Platforms like these define a "good" future match by using the definition of a "good" past match, without considering how those past matches came to be.

There may be no easy way for platforms to establish a natural baseline of user compatibility against which to measure the effectiveness of their matching algorithms. Some intimate platforms have tried to establish such a baseline experimentally. OKCupid, for instance, ran a series of experiments in which users were (unwittingly) presented with "bad" matches (according to the site's algorithm) but told that they were highly compatible [80]. The site found that the power of suggestion had a real effect on user behavior: users who were predicted to be incompatible had more successful interactions when they were told by the platform that they were compatible. Though OKCupid's experiment faced public criticism (e.g. [95])—primarily because users were not informed and did not consent to it—its results suggest that intentional experimentation with matching algorithm design can not only help users explore their preferences, but may be necessary in order to determine the efficacy of these tools and to discover unexpected good matches. As in

Proc. ACM Hum.-Comput. Interact., Vol. 2, No. CSCW, Article 73. Publication date: November 2018.

Proc. ACM Hum.-Comput. Interact., Vol. 2, No. CSCW, Article 73. Publication date: November 2018.

8.3 Which categories are appropriate for intervention?

While it may strike us as normatively acceptable to encourage intimate platform users to be open to more diverse potential partners, we might find some categories more palatable for such intervention than others. For example, it might seem inappropriate to suggest that a Jewish user seeking other Jewish people "expand her horizon" past those preferences, which might be based on a number of religious and cultural considerations. Similarly, a platform suggesting that a gay user "consider" dating someone of a different gender would likely strike us as problematic. Intimate platforms can be very useful for minorities looking to meet others who share their background and values. Instead of drawing a bright line on what should or should not be acceptable categories to consider, we suggest that designers should take the needs of marginalized or historically oppressed populations into account when considering how intimate platform features are used. Careful consideration of the outcomes of the exercise of intimate platform features may reveal that some of these groups are at greater risk for harm than others, and that platform features should be implemented accordingly.

What is the mainstream liberal understanding of why as soon as they got what they wanted in the 1960s, American cities fell apart and became violent war zones?

Some people have mentioned "white flight." What is the liberal view? That the cities actually became better starting in the 1960s, but white people are so racist that they left against their own interest and moved to the suburbs? Just because racism, not because of what happened?
